Dublin, Ireland's capital, is famous for its easygoing charm. The city's mixture of the traditional and the modern will excite and inspire.

Dublin is home to a large number of multinational corporations, particularly in information technology, digital media, financial services and the pharmaceutical industry. It is also where the headquarters of several large Irish public companies are based, including Élan, Bank of Ireland, Ryanair, Smurfit Kappa Group and Paddy Power.

Ted Webb

Host & Managing Director
Our Dublin office

“ The speed networking format of the M&A Mid-Market Forum is innovative and very efficient. As these meetings are well prepared and relevant information has been exchanged in advance, 20 minutes is enough to discuss opportunities and to decide whether they are worth exploring further. Our clients have the chance to form four to six new relationships with strategics from around the globe in just a few hours. That is pretty unique and time well spent for everybody. ”
